■ LUBRICATION MECHANISM

The rear drive unit is lubricated by ATF slung up by the differential ring gear. A fluid catch tank is used in this drive unit in order to supply oil in a stable manner. The fluid catch tank temporarily stores the ATF that is slung up, and supplies ATF in a stable manner to the different parts of the gear train.

